The 2017 Annual Conference
North American Society for the Sociology of Sport
November 1 – 4
Windsor, Ontario

Conference Theme:
Sport Matters: Physics, Politics, Performances, Pedagogies

While exigencies and politics may have changed, in the 37 years that the members of the North American Society for the Sociology of Sport (NASSS) have convened their annual meetings, two things have remained constant: sport is both matter and sport matters. In this year's meeting, we invite participants to explore the double meaning of "matter(s)" in the context of contemporary sport and physical culture. That is, we invite scholars to explore how physical and material bodies in/of motion (and at play) both constitute, and are constituted by, broader political, economic, and cultural arrangements. At an historical moment defined in North America (and beyond) by growing degrees of xenophobia, ethnic nationalism, global neoliberalism, heteronormative patriarchy, ableist doxa, environmental collapse, and anti-science politics, we believe that bodies performing therein serve as critical 'matters of concern' for understanding our present condition.

In keeping with the conference theme, sessions may highlight various ways in which scholars are exploring the double meaning of sport-related matter (as both consequential and substantial) and the alliterative intersections that make it so (e.g. politics-physics, politics-performances, politics-pedagogies, physics-performances, physics-pedagogies, performances-pedagogies). For this year's event, we encourage scholars doing theoretical, empirical, and interventionist work on sporting and physically active bodies and body cultures to bring together scholarship and activism that seeks to make sense of and provide resistance to the uneven politics working against bodies in motion and at play. The conference will feature presentations from a wide variety of approaches, including but not limited to: activism, sport for peace and development, social work, critical coaching, critical pedagogy, policy and governance, engagement with the media, self-authored media (e.g. blogging, podcasts), and others. The full range of theoretical and methodological will also be represented, including: poststructuralism, postmodernism, new materialism, participatory action research, ethnography, discourse analysis, post-positivism, critical management studies, media studies, and of course sociological theory and methods.

Any errors in content and layout are solely the responsibility of the Conference Program Committee Chair.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY.
SPORT
MANAGEMENT

For more than 20 years, the doctoral program in Sport Management at Florida State University has led the way in preparing young scholars to become leaders in university-based research and teaching. FSU is proud to have over 100 doctoral alumni currently employed at leading sport management programs worldwide.

Here at FSU, doctoral students engage in a rigorous interdisciplinary program, blending the content areas of sport management, sport marketing, legal and policy issues, and sport media and cultural studies. Our students work with award-winning faculty who have:

- authored over 250 research publications in the field's leading journals
- authored or edited more than 20 books
- delivered more than 300 keynote, plenary, and conference presentations
- received over 20 local, regional, and national grants supporting more than $2 million in research, outreach, and development initiatives
- served, or currently serve, on the editorial boards for 20 of the field's top journals

THANK YOU

See you in Vancouver, British Columbia in 2018!

In Memory of

David Stanley (Stan) Eitzen

August 4, 1934 – July 3, 2017

Dr. Eitzen got his professional start as a high school educator, teaching social studies and coaching football, basketball and track and field. After earning his PhD in Sociology from the University of Kansas, where he then taught for six years, Dr. Eitzen went on to be a professor for 21 years at Colorado State University. Stan's work has had a tremendous impact on the field of the sociology of sport. He was one of the early scholars who helped to develop the North American Society for the Sociology of Sport, serving as the organization's 5th President (1986-1987). His research interests were sociology of sport, political sociology, family, criminology, social inequality, and social problems. He published numerous articles and textbooks, served as editor of the Social Science Journal and the Journal of the Western Social Science Association. He remained active in research and in his engagement with NASSS long after his retirement. We are grateful for his contributions to our scholarly community and will deeply miss his welcoming presence at our annual conference.

Sport and Modernity

Richard Gruneau

"Rick Gruneau is the best theorist and analyst of sports writing today or yesterday; and probably will be tomorrow as well.

Sport and Modernity is as sophisticated theoretically and as rich empirically as it is pleasing to read. A landmark."

Toby Miller, University of California, Riverside

"With the publication of the brilliant Sport and Modernity, Richard Gruneau has not only produced a new way of looking at sport but, more importantly, has offered us a radical rereading of the origins and project of modernity itself and in so doing confirms his position as Canada's leading social theorist and cultural historian of sport."

A Critical Sociology

Second edition

Richard Giulianotti

"Rigorous and clearly organized, this second edition stands out among the many introductory texts to sport sociology. Giulianotti's critical sociological perspective is embedded in a solid discussion of social theory and pays close attention to the multiple meanings that individuals' everyday actions bring to sport. The book inspires much-needed critical reflection on power inequalities in sport while exploring alternative forms of sporting practice. It is an essential text for any reader interested in understanding the complexities of contemporary sport."

North American Society for the Sociology of Sport (NASSS)
38th Annual Conference

The Drake Group shares NASSS's passion for the promotion of sociological study of all sport and the culture of intercollegiate athletics.

Our Mission

The mission of The Drake Group is to defend academic integrity in higher education from the corrosive aspects of commercialized college sports.

The Robert M. Hutchins Award

The Robert Maynard Hutchins Award is given annually to faculty or staff members who take a courageous stand to defend academic integrity at their institutions, often risking job security. Hutchins was the President of the University of Chicago from 1929 to 1951, where he defended the liberal arts, and opposed the rampant commercialization of college football which, in his view, undermined core values of higher learning.

CALL FOR BOOKS

CRITICAL ISSUES IN SPORT AND SOCIETY SERIES

Edited by Douglas Hartmann and Michael Messner

Critical Issues in Sport and Society features scholarly books that help expand our understanding of the myriad ways in which sport is intertwined with social life in the contemporary world. Using the tools of various scholarly disciplines, including sociology, anthropology, history, media studies and others, books in this new series investigate the growing impact of sport and sports-related activities on various aspects of social life as well as key developments and changes in the sporting world and emerging sporting practices. Series authors produce groundbreaking research that brings empirical and applied work together with cultural critique and historical perspectives written in an engaging, accessible format.

The Graduate Program in the Department of Kinesiology at San José State University (San José, CA: USA) has approximately 100 students across five concentrations: Athletic Training, Exercise Physiology, Sport Management, Sport Studies, and General Kinesiology. Several faculty members also work closely with the newly launched Institute for the Study of Sport, Society, and Social Change. Our department has a rich history of training students to be competent, socially aware professionals in their respective fields which befits a program on a campus with a longstanding commitment to social justice in sport and larger society.

Sport Management Concentration

The goal of the Sport Management Graduate Program is to prepare graduate students for a variety of management positions in the major sports industry segments: Professional Sport, Intercollegiate Athletics, Interscholastic Athletics, Youth and Community Sport, Sport Tourism, Health and Fitness, International Sport, Event and Facility Management, Sports Governing Bodies and Associations. The requirements for the 30-unit program are: Two core research methods courses, four sport management courses, including marketing, finance, legal aspects, and leadership, two electives, an internship course and a final master's project. SJSU's location in California's Bay Area affords a wide array of exciting internship opportunities. Completion of the program will enable individuals to be prepared to work in the wide range of disciplines within the sports industry, including high school and intercollegiate athletics, professional sport, corporate fitness and health, public relations, sport marketing, event management, private businesses, and community services.

SJSU Institute for the Study of Sport, Society and Social Change

Sport Studies Concentration

The Sport Studies Graduate Program encompasses a variety of approaches to the study of sport and the body, and is comprised of theories and research methodologies from psychology, sociology, history, philosophy, and cultural studies of sport. Our program approaches sport from a critical perspective that addresses issues of social identity, power, and agency, while recognizing the positive effects of sport and exercise participation and experiences. The interdisciplinary 30-unit program will prepare students for careers in sport-related settings such as coaching, sport psychology, and public, community, and private sport organizations. In addition, it will equip students with a solid academic foundation for entrance into top doctoral programs in Sport Psychology and Sport Sociology. In addition to our well-respected faculty, including multiple NASSS and AASP members, the department also houses the Kinesiology Qualitative Research lab, equipped with the latest software for data analysis.
